

Growth in the Crisis 1 Topic - 3 Voices

This year's first Top Event in Munich will be organised according to an innovative format. We will look at one subject from three angles:

- The Voice of the Alumnus
- The Voice of the School
- The Voice of the Boardroom

A panel discussion will facilitate a lively debate between our invited experts and you.

The complete programme can be found on www.ha-g.de/Veranstaltungen.

Reduce to the max

In line with the apparent paradoxon of growth in times of crises, Thomas Peters, one of Germany's most successful actors and his British musical partner Geoffrey Abbott will present us pop songs composed for bands in reduced form but still recognisable. Can "reducing to the max" be a way forward in challenging times? Peters and Abbott will suggest their own artistic answers in terms of musical essences and witty little stories.

Düsseldorf keeps rolling

On 27 May 2009 Felix Geldsetzer had invited for another one of Düsseldorf's Henley Alumni Business Meetings. Eight people attended and participated in lively conversations and enjoyed the social get together. A great thank you goes to Felix for his continued efforts to live the network in the Rhineland. Keep it rolling, Düsseldorf!

The Journey to a world class network

"Henley Alumni in Germany: The Journey to a world class network" is the title of a new strategic paper which summarises our mission, strategic position, objectives, aims & vehicles as well as the strategic initiatives we will have to implement in order to gain excellence.

Please find a copy of the paper on www.ha-g.de/ueberuns (Ziele, Motive und das Umsetzungskonzept).

As you can see, many initiatives still need champions to drive them. Please contact Armin Rau via our Website and help us to make this big by driving an initiative forward.

Henley Alumnus Jörg Käse offers strategic routes out of the recession

On 18 June, we will have our first Executive Roundtable Discussion at the Hotel Bayerischer Hof in Munich. After almost a year of economic downturn on a worldwide basis there is still no clear view amongst economists, politicians, and business leaders what the most effective responses can be.

Henley Alumnus Jörg Käse who has more than 20 years of global top management and advisory experience will moderate the discussion and offer strategic solutions along the following themes:

- The current state of the world economy and the roots of the crisis
- Strategic options for a sustainable future development of international enterprises and the global economy based on the strategic planning framework that Jörg developed

- Consequences for strategic planning and key strategic issues in our companies

Please join the group of five who have already registered. If the weather allows, we will meet on the roof terrace!
